LIBRARY SYSTEM
Prince William, VA

The Setting

Place: an overcrowded school in the suburban town of Manassas, Virginia.

Time: one thousand, nine hundred seventy-five years after the birth of Christ, eight hundred fifty-nine years after the Battle of Hastings, one hundred ninety-nine years after the signing of the Declaration of Independence and six years after Neil Armstrong took a giant leap for all Mankind.

The Prologue

As this small world turned, it became plainer year after year that the oldest school in Manassas could no longer hold its growing student population. For that reason Manassas citizens found it necessary to construct a new educational institute.

Postponements, law suits and other unexpected delays arose in the building of the new school. However, the move was to be made the following year.

The Year 1975
Was Promised to Be Osbourn's
Last Production

Cast of Characters:

(Entering from stage right): An administrator—an individual who attempts to uphold the amalgamation of the student body, and a teacher—one who struggles to fill his pupil's academic needs.

(From the extreme left enters): A Freshman—a new comer from the Outer Limits (Junior High), a sophomore—a student eager to learn from the upper classmen, a junior—a school miser and sponsor of the Senior Prom.

These personalities comprise the masterpiece "Osbourne's Last Production."

Co-Starring: Freshmen

Freshmen entered Osbourn scared and full of hope for the future. The class of '78 found it easy to make friends and adjust to the initial hustle and bustle of high school life. Class officers were elected and everyone was pleased with the outcome: President—Teresa Norris,

This was the last year of a long haul and President Mike VanHorn led the class to its final destination, graduation. Through numerous donut sales, car washes, and jewelry sales, the Senior Class raised most of the money needed for the various enterprises. The first place Senior Class Float, the Senior Dance, Se-

Whether planning on continuing their education or going right into the job market, seniors faced many bleak prospects after graduation. Jobs were scarce, especially for the young and untrained. College costs were astronomical and would continue to rise.

Two-thirds of the graduating class were out looking for jobs in the spring of '75. Unemployment was then at 8% and would rise. Some students either joined the military or sought employment out of town.

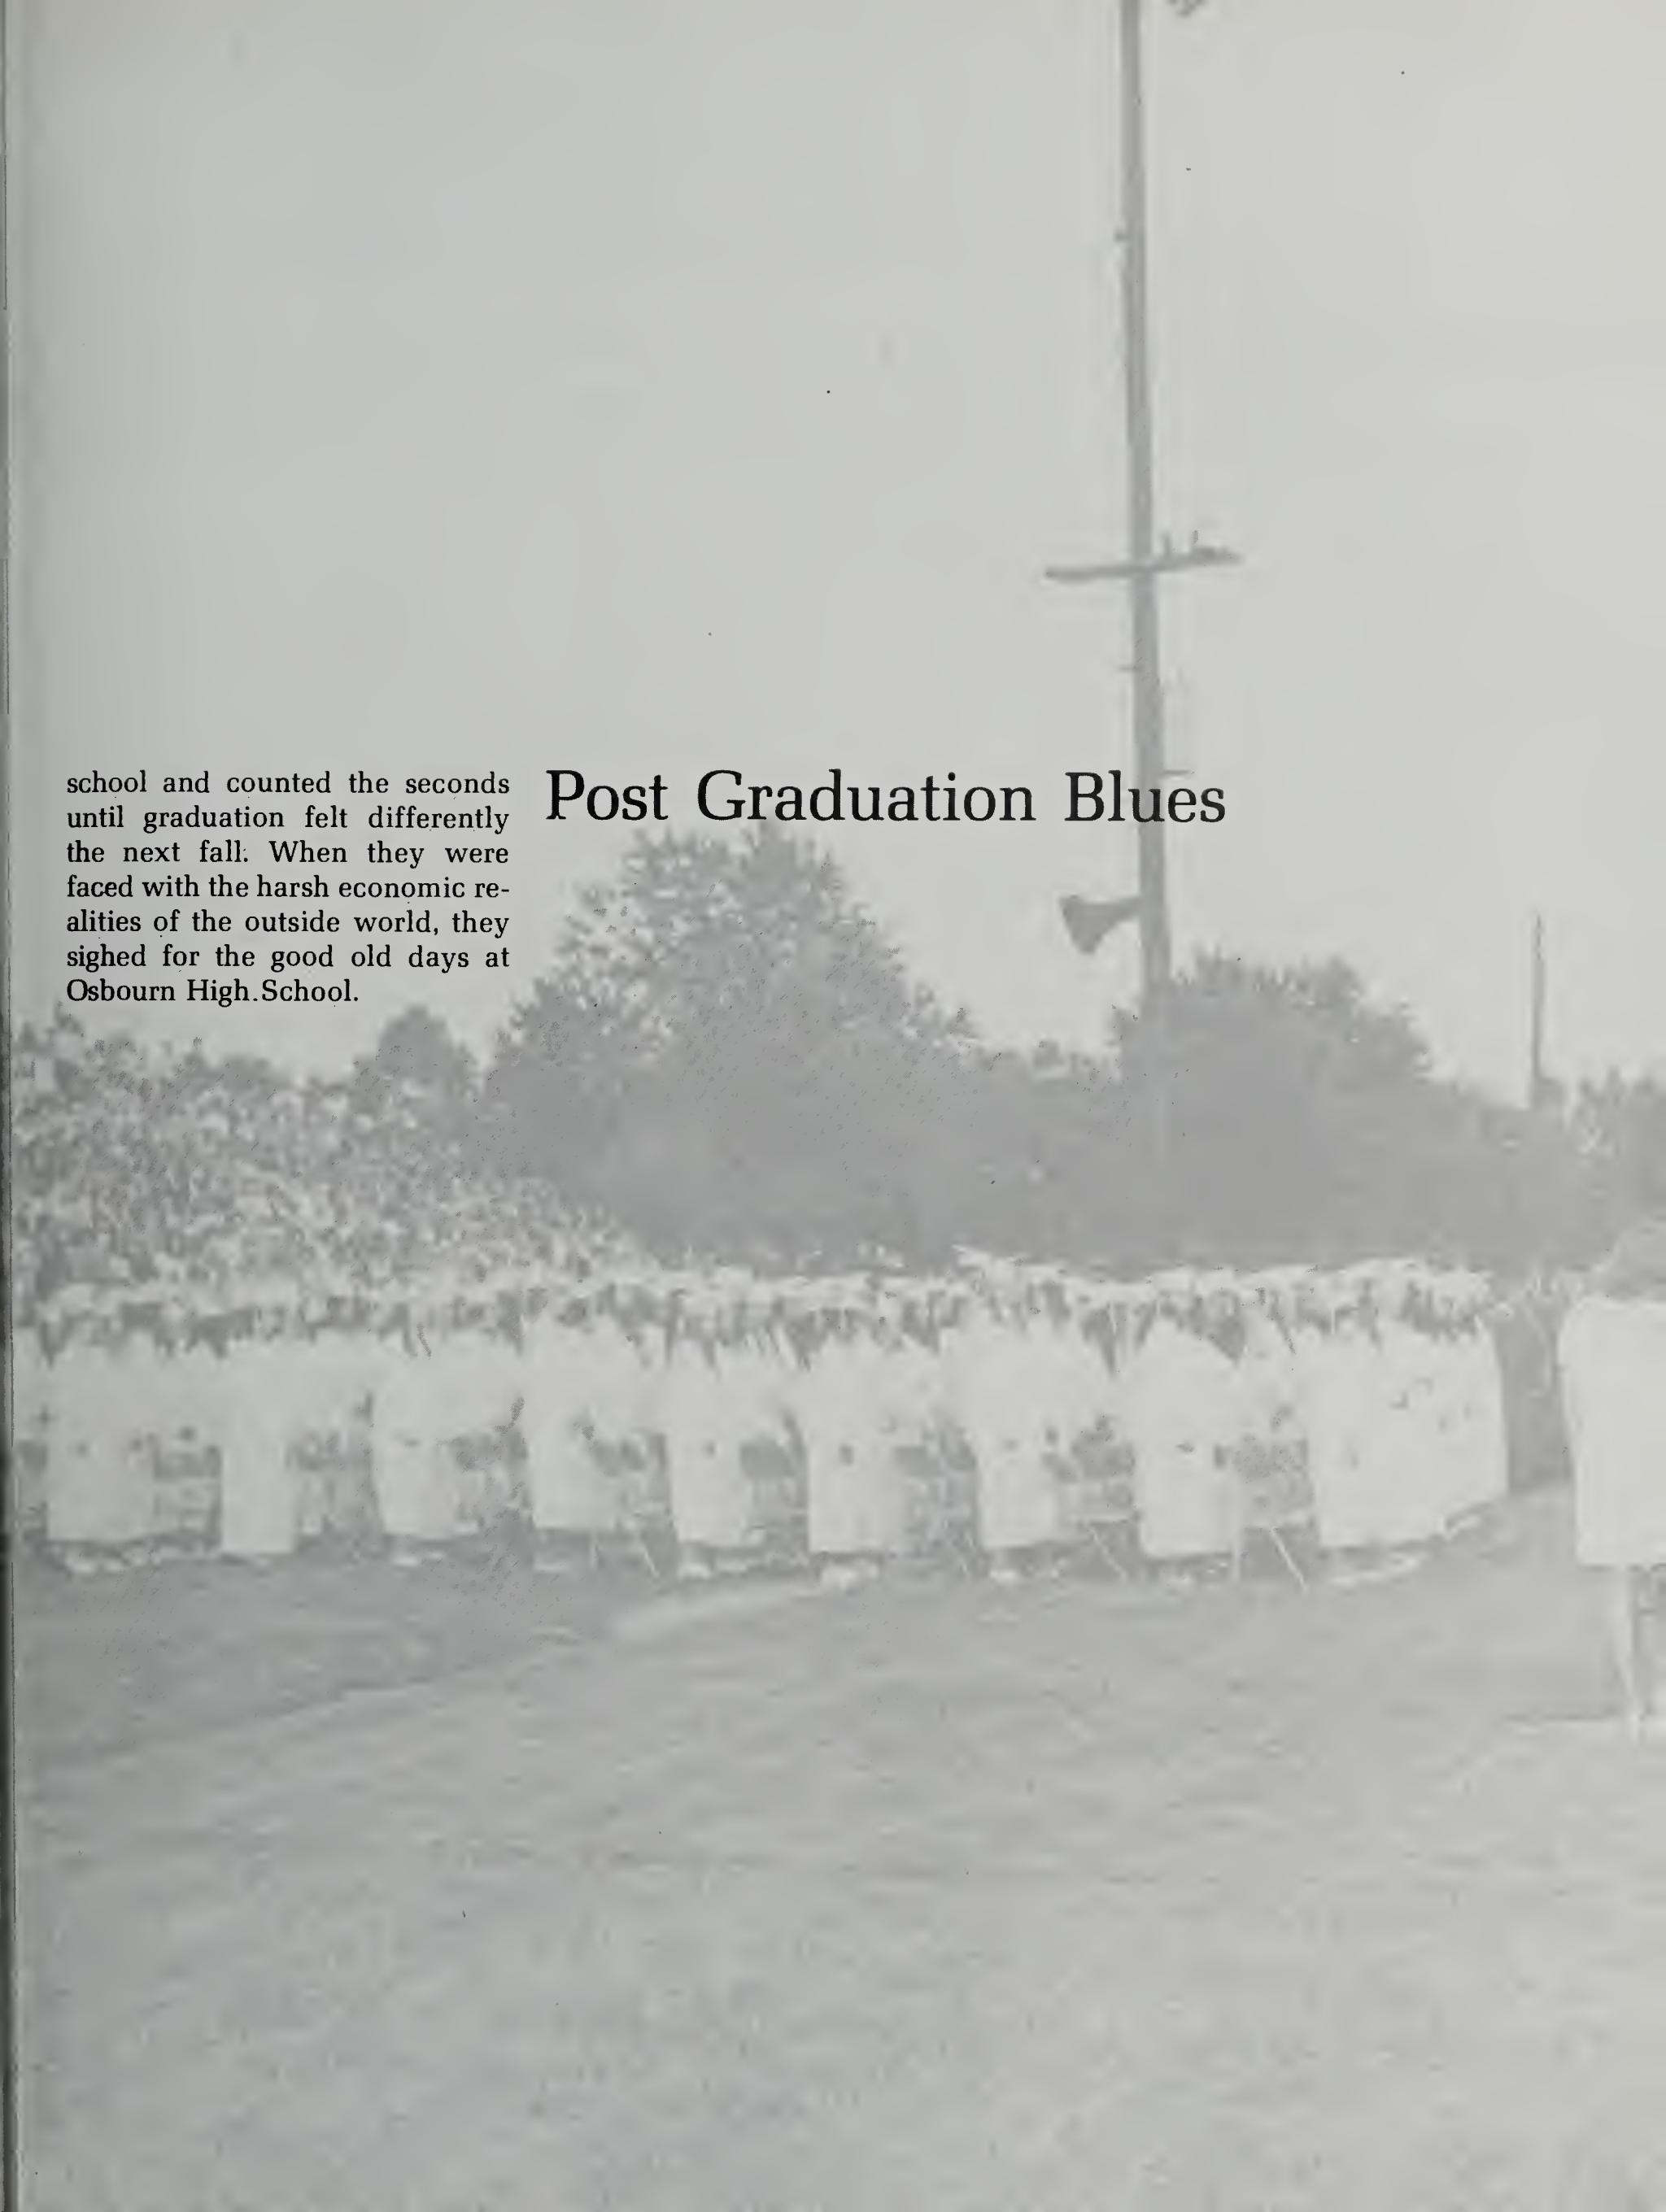

After a senior had been accepted at college, his problems were not over. State school costs were increasing every year. This forced many students to live at home and go to either George Mason or Northern Virginia Community College. For the majority of college-bound seniors, private or out of state colleges were not even a possibility. Private school rates were running from between $3,000 and $4,000 a year.

Seniors who moaned about school and counted the seconds until graduation felt differently the next fall. When they were faced with the harsh economic realities of the outside world, they sighed for the good old days at Osbourn High School.

Post Graduation Blues

ACT I:

The Fall

As school began, so did the variability of temperatures and times. The clock was turned back, which brought more complaints to the school board about the early pre-dawn hours. The temperature also fluctuated, making it hard to decide what to wear to school.

However, despite these factors and the two separate shifts, school got underway.

Athletic competition began. Football had another trying season. Osbourn's harriers had a good record and have many hopes for the next year, and Girls' Varsity Basketball tried to grasp another championship.

Cross Country Team Improves, Has Winning Season

Pressing his team onward, Coach Suddith calls out the time. Exhausted, Jay Long crosses the finish line. Trying to replenish lost energy, OHS runner relaxes.

Marv Colas, Mark Hill, Greg Colas, and Jeff Howell. Not pictured—David Thompson, Jay Long, Ken Coddington, Mark Grant, Richard Sale, Jamie Brown and Dennis Archinal.

The Osbourn Cross-Country team finished their season with a record of five wins and four losses in dual and tri-meet competition. This was one of the few winning seasons that Osbourn has had in cross country since the sport was started at this school. The Yellow Jackets also fared well in the Invitational meets, and they finished sixth out of nine teams in the Commonwealth District meet.

Greg Colas, a junior, represented Osbourn well as he qualified for both the Virginia Regional and State Cross Country Meets. He finished fourteenth in the Regionals and ninety-ninth in the State.

The Yellow Jackets will have many members of this year's squad back again next year, as they only graduate seniors and captains David Thompson, Jay Long, and Mark Colas. Returning next year will be Greg Colas, Ken Coddington, Mark Grant, Jack Diehl, Richard Sale, Mark Hill, Jamie Brown, Jeff Howell, and Dennis Archinal.

"Cross country has to be one of the most demanding sports mentally and physically. The goal of our cross country team was to win and have a good time, and it seems they did both this year." quoting Coach Suddith.

National Cheerleading Champions

Osbourn's Varsity cheerleading squad was selected as the National Champion for 1974, the highest honor ever received by a cheerleading squad at OHS.

The girls were judged on still pictures and the head instructor's comments. Only five squads from the forty-four states in competition were selected to receive the national title. Osbourn's cheerleaders represented the East Coast region of the United States. In addition to the title, the girls were awarded a three hundred dollar gift certificate and the national trophy.

Captain Ginger Allen, co-captains Marci Howard and Paula Van Horn practiced diligently all summer long with the rest of the squad—Cheryl DiVecchia, Leigh Anne Dowell, Janet Reed, Tory Everett, Cheri Lese, Carolyn Raymond, and Brenda Shockley. They traveled to Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Virginia, to attend camp from August fifth through the eighth. At camp they proved their talent, for the girls were awarded four superior ribbons and the spirit stick each day when they appeared for evaluation. On the final day at camp, the cheerleaders were again awarded the blue ribbon on their evaluation and were selected to compete for the top squad at camp. On the basis of the judges' ballots Osbourn was given the District Championship.

Ginger Allen was honored as the only cheerleader selected to apply for an instructor position next summer for the National Cheerleader's Association.

Another Year ...

Another Season ...

Clutching the ball, OHS ball carrier runs with the blocks. Zarko Ellis picks up the yards, outrunning Albemarle's defense. In a one on one situation, Osbourn gains yardage. Concerned Coach Hornfeck paces the sidelines. Ricky Tibbs, limping, is aided off the field. While George Kelechek tries to avoid a sack, Zarko Ellis goes up the hole.

Next year . . .

The Osbourn Varsity football team had another 0-10 season this year; however, there were several close calls. In the James Wood game the team almost came out on top, but a very questionable field goal with seconds left ruined the seemingly inevitable victory. In other games it seemed that the Jackets would play well in the first half but would be defeated in the second half. This could have been due to the relatively small number of players on the team in comparison with the other AAA teams that played. At the most OHS had 28 players at a game while other teams averaged around 46 players.

This year the Jackets will be losing 17 seniors, but hope lies in the advancement of several underclassmen.

Members who made the All-County teams were Zarko Ellis and Ricky Woodward (Journal Messenger and Potomac News), and Curt Evans (Journal Messenger).

Also, during the season the Journal Messenger named Zarko Ellis as an "offensive player of the week" and Bob Frazier a "defensive player of the week". As Coach Kuhn stated at the Awards Assembly," Osbourn's season is coming. But then, 'when' is another question. Maybe next year?"

Ready for the snap, quarterback barks out signals. Rick Woodward listens to coach's advice. Preparing for a tackle, Osbourn offense gains a yard.

Almost Had It

In the crucial and exciting Stonewall-Osbourn game the Jackets managed to score first. O.H.S. was holding on to their lead, displaying fine defensive tactics, while Stonewall Jackson threatened to score. The clock presumably ran out in the second quarter during the Raiders' attempt for six points. Stonewall complained that there was still one second remaining. The referees consulted each other and their final decision was in favor of Stonewall's complaint. This resulted in a score. However, the Raiders missed the extra point. At the end of the half it was Osbourn 7, Stonewall 6.

In the second half Osbourn didn't look quite as sharp as they did in the first. Both the offense and the defense were lagging, committing too many mistakes. Stonewall Jackson scored a second time and then made two extra points. The final score of the game: Stonewall 14, Osbourn 7.

Homecoming '74

The 13-0 loss of Osbourn's Yellow Jackets failed to dampen the student body's spirit. During the festive halftime ceremonies, the class of '75 came out on top for the second year in a row, winning the float competition. Representatives in the Homecoming Court this year were: Marcia Howard, Janet Reed, and Patti Zangas, '75; Paula Van Horn and Troy Everett, '76; Denise Messall and Kathy Burpo, '77; Nancy Myers and Cheryl Crane, '78. Marcia Howard was crowned Homecoming Queen, 1974-75.

With "Nostalgia" as this year's theme, the SCA-sponsored Homecoming Dance was enjoyed by all who attended. Music was provided by "Carderock."

New Rules—Same Winning Team

The high scorers of the Queen Bee team (Cheri Morrow and Lisa Hewitt) kept right on shooting and scoring, regardless of the new rules. The Girls' Varsity Basketball Team ended a fine season with a record of 9-5 after a playoff with Woodbridge.

Five second penetration and ten second backcourt rulings were a few of the boys' rules adopted this year into girls' play. These new rulings seemed to be an advantage point to the Queen Bees as they increased and practiced their steals and fast breaks.

However, despite the good season the Girls' Varsity Team had, Coach Priola commented on something her team lacked, something not on record. Very few girls seemed to practice their discipline and show their dedication. Perhaps this was due to the many rules and staff changes before the season began.

Next year will be a rebuilding year as three team starters graduate. The outstanding defensive play of Julie Mogenis, Anne Lee, and Lisa Hewitt will be missed. The expectations of next year's team are unpredictable.

Looking forward to the move to the new school, Ms. Priola is pleased with her team's standings and next year looks forward to good equipment, good officials, and skilled, dedicated girls.

Coach Rector's Little Bees Make Honey Out of Gar-field

"We learned from our losses," stated Ms. Rector, a new gym teacher and coach of Osbourn's Little Bees. The J.V. basketball team was almost entirely compiled of freshmen who were "green" and unfamiliar with high school ball and the new rule changes.

Their season, comprised of many losses, had no reflection on the girls' spirits, which were always soaring high. However, the Little Bees seemed to pull everything together in the exciting game against Gar-field. They beat the Indians, rallying together as a team for a victory.

Next year, Coach Rector idealizes a winning team with the same spirit, but more experience.

Those were The days! The Spirited 50's

The concept behind Osbourn's 1950 day was to build up the spirits of the student body for the homecoming game.

Many girls participated, modeling long skirts, white bobby socks, saddle shoes, ponytails, and ruby red lips. The men of that day, however, sported the usual greaser-type attire which complimented their muscular bodies.

This homecoming rally was also joined by many teachers, who felt quite comfortable in their old school clothes.

Ordinary students loitering in their shades. Margie Hayes and Christie Burger hop down the corridor. Debbie Brown and friends are ready for the malt shop. Bruce Hall, smiling girlishly, waits for class to begin. Just posing is James Ashby, Diane Breeden, and Mike Miler. Miss Payne checks on the cheerleaders as Mrs. Crane patrols the halls. Ms. Sciarrino jitterbugs to class.

Fall Wrap-Up Fun Season

Besides this season's sports accomplishments, Osbourn High School saw many other activities. Donut sales, car washes, the freshman dance, the homecoming game and dance, a pep rally, and the 50's day were all big successes. Students of all grade levels enjoyed these fun-filled events and planned more for winter ...

Nearly all puffed out, Ms. Sawyer gets DE balloons ready for Homecoming. A mass of crayons add some color to school life. Teachers joyfully take a lunch break away from the students. Many people have learned that the OHS cosmetology department does professional looking hair styling at an inexpensive price. The Homecoming parade features Osbourn clowns. Ms. Boley instructs one of her fine choral classes. Searching for a hole in the line, an OHS ball carrier tries for a first down.

ACT II:

The Winter

The winter of 1974-75 brought some unexpected occurrences to Osbourn's students. January's weather presented everyone with a snowy vacation. The school board declared two days off because of the white stuff, and students rejoiced—the two days were at the end of the semester, and many culminating activities were cancelled.

Another exciting surprise was the performance of the boys' basketball team, which ended the season unusually well. The Queen Bee gymnasts also balanced a good season. Finally, despite the unsavory conditions, Coach Kuhn had his runners jogging through practice.

Coach Looks Forward to Next Year

This year Ms. Turner tried to build her girls into a strong team of specialists. She had one all-around competitor but hopes for three, possibly four, next year.

Competition in gymnastics is quickly growing, so it is necessary for a gymnast to have an unending knowledge of executed moves and the piece of equipment she is utilizing.

This season's outstanding team members, Martha Derring (Bars, Vault, Floor), Lisa Haynes (All-Around), Karen Swenson (Beam, Floor, Vault), Tracy Kelly (Floor), Mary Beth Dowell (Beam), Anna Geisler (Beam), Kim Cobb (Bars), and Faith Van Noppen (Bars), led the Queen Bees to victories over Quantico, Brentsville, Loudoun Valley, and Loudoun County.

Karen Swenson carefully but gracefully moves through her floor exercises. Lisa Haynes, all around, runs into a move and later displays her flexibility as she executes another part of her floor exercises. Faith Van Noppen warms up on the evens. Holly Haynes practices a vault, followed by Martha Derring.

Indoor Track

The members of the '74-'75 season indoor track team were Tim Colas, Jack Diehl, John Alerding, Denny Wheeling, Robert Pickett, Ricky Woodward, Zarko Ellis, John McLaughlin, Ken Coddington, Wendel Davis, Dennis Archinal, Gary Leny, Bob Frazier, Greg Colas, David Thompson, Richard Sale, Brian Spittler, and Marv Colas. All ran well, practicing in the blistering cold. There were members who placed in the district meet in Lynchburg, like Greg Colas in the mile relay and the two mile run, David Thompson in the 600 and mile relay, Richard Sale in the 1000 and mile relay, and Brain Spittler in the mile relay.

Greg Colas, whose performance was exceptional, qualified for the State Meet by setting an Osbourn record in the two mile run with 9.58 seconds, beating the old record of 10.04.

Jack Diehl "unpreparing" after his event. Greg Colas setting the two mile record for Osbourn. The start of a long distance event. The agony of defeat, the joy of winning. David Thompson starts his kick. Zarko Ellis leaps far. The turn of the two mile.

Records Set, Records Broken

The Varsity Wrestling team of the '74-'75 season was led by three outstanding wrestlers. Rick Kratzer, one of the team's co-captains, had the best overall record and scored the most pins. He also placed second in both the District and Regional Tournaments. The other co-captain, Al Higby, held the season's record for the most reversals. Danny, another member of the Kratzer clan, was one of only five freshmen out of 192 wrestlers who went to the State Tournament. He scored the most takedowns of the season and had the most wins of any freshman in Osbourn's history. Danny placed fourth in the District Tournament and third in the Regionals.

Other Varsity members who contributed immensely were Chuck Proctor at 98 pounds, Kenny Moore at 145, Juan Hall at 155, Chris Snellenberger at 167, Dale Burke at 185, and Kenny Donner in the unlimited weight class.

The JV team was composed of Terry Teets, who weighed in at 98 pounds, Gregg Simpson at 105, Kenny Larsen at 112, John Raymond at 112, Trip Butler at 126 and Tim Allen in the unlimited weight class.

This year's wrestling managers were Patty Lawrence and Martha Cox.

From top to bottom: Greg Simpson, Dale Burke, Ken Doner, Chris Snellenberger, Kenny Mours, Juan Hall, Kenny Larsen, Rick Kratzer, Allen Higby, and Danny

Boys' Basketball

David Rhoads tries to get a shot off under Woodbridge pressure. Stonewall can't stop a Don Howard layup. John Martin attempts a jump shot. John Donlon in offensive rebounding position. The aftermath of the Stonewall victory. An "Oscar King Special". David Rhoads makes the shot and gets two more foul shot attempts.

Coach Payne, quite pleased with this year's Jacket squad, commented that even though the team is young there will be an overall improvement by next season.

Osbourn finished the 1974-1975 basketball season with a total of six wins and fifteen losses; however, they did manage to place third in the Christmas tournament, bringing home a trophy for their merits.

Evan Swank, a senior, was the top scorer, totaling 288 points. He also held the best percentage in free throws, but shared this title with John Martin.

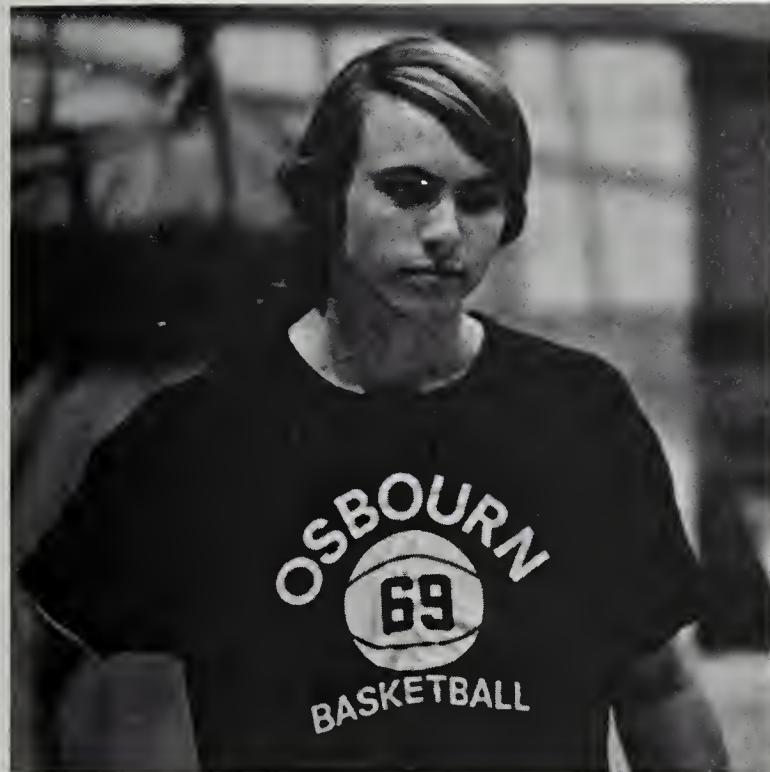

This year the Jacket team will lose nine seniors, but, despite this, Varsity Coach Art Payne anticipates an outstanding basketball team.

The Team

Yuletide Entertainment

Osbourn High School's Music Department organized a successful presentation called "Christmas Vespers" for this year's holiday celebration. Under the direction of Ms. Wandalyn Boley and Ms. Becky Verner, the music students performed a variety of Christmas carols. Decorations were organized by Mr. Frank Seese, who also entertained the audience in his Santa Claus costume.

A second Christmas concert featured the Symphonic Orchestra and the OHS Band. The Orchestra lead off the program with three seasonal pieces, and was then followed by the Band. The closing number of the concert was a rendition of "Oh Come All Ye Faithful," performed by both the Band and the Choir. The two musical programs were a highlight of the Osbourn yuletide season.

Mugging around, Dean Smith warms up before the Christmas presentation. Proud of their students' work, Ms. Boley and Mr. Criswell watch the program. The audience enjoys the Band's performance. Blending their talents together, the Choir and Band present a holiday carol. The Osbourn Choir pleases their receptive audience.

An Evening of Entertainment.

The Spirit of '76 gave Osbourn an entertaining boost in February with the annual Junior Class Talent Show. It was, as in past years, a great success. Led by class president Donna Smith and emcees Matt Waldron and Bert Roseberry (who must have memorized 1001 Bad Jokes for All Occasions), the Juniors proved Osbourn was blessed by an abundance of talented students. The top spots of the show were won by first place Karen Simmons with her dancing ability, second placed Susan France on the piano, and Susan Kervick on the violin (with the world's shortest concerto), accompanied by Mary Canadas on the piano, placed third. As an added bonus, the judges bestowed three honorable mentions to James Dayton on the guitar, the Freshman class, which acted out a hilarious take-off called "The Price Is a Little Off," and, as most novel act, T.R. Dearden and his organic music. The audience enjoyed the entire show, and the Juniors enjoyed taking in the money, which went toward Prom.

Winter Wrap Up

The Last Half

The Winter brought snow, vacation, concerts, Senior dance, and the end of first semester.

Juniors received their rings and dreamed of next year while the Seniors tried to see their hopes materialize.

Stagehands

The clubs and activity groups of this school year were very unorganized. However, like always there were a few organizations who failed to conform with the others and ruin their reputation.

The dwindling attendance and the lack of interest and money helped to put many clubs out of circulation.

The successful groups were the Key Club, Lionettes, Varsity Club, Hi Jacket, Deca, Cheerleaders, Majorettes, Drill Team, Science Club, Chess Club, Band, Choirs, and the Pep Club.

This limited group of activists comprised the stagehands of Osbourn High School.

Under the leadership of President Rodney Moyers, the S.C.A. focused its efforts on uniting the shifts through spirited activities. After attending the S.C.A. workshop, Rodney, Donna Smith, and Matthew Myers passed along innovative ideas to get the S.C.A.'s plans underway. Assisting Rodney were Vice-President James Ashby, Secretary Cindy Collins, Treasurer Cindy Base, and Stenographers Karen Rice and Ann Thomas. Some of the money making projects included the showing of the movie, "The Sting," and a very successful magazine drive in which earnings of more than a thousand dollars were contributed towards the annual Homecoming Dance and the S.C.A.'s closing year project. Other activities included the revising of the O.H.S. handbook, the sponsoring of the Freshman Dance, and the collecting of funds for UNICEF during Halloween. A Saint Patrick's Day Dance was planned along with various assemblies to be held in the spring. The Student Council fulfilled its purpose during the busy 1974-75 school year by being aware and responding to students' needs.

The Hi-Jacket Strikes Again

"Do you really know what you're getting in to?" co-editors Julie Mogenis and Cathy Roseberry asked new sponsor Ms. Blair at their first meeting. The pair wondered about the mental stability of anyone who willingly agreed to sponsor the infamous Hi-Jacket, an annual literary masterpiece plagued by staggering debts, a minuscule staff, and constantly missed deadlines.

Ms. Blair was proven mentally sane. She and the editors swore this year would be different—make a little money, enlarge the staff, and, most importantly, meet the deadlines. To show they meant it, the trio decided to put out a spring book—and that involved meeting all the deadlines, something no Hi-Jacket staff had done within anyone's memory. Next, they ensnared anybody that displayed some skill needed in putting out a yearbook (can you type?), and deposited the crew in Hut B, a depressing little cave that had seen better times but was still better than nothing. The mob was nearly thirty strong at the beginning, but dwindled rapidly to a fluctuating fifteen. Julie and Cathy were helped out by assistant editor Liz Nugent, photographers Mark Wolfe and Jean Martin, business staff members Suzi Von Oettingen, John Donlon, Cindy Kappler, and Beth McGolrick, and those wonderful people who did various jobs ranging from writing to typing to keeping the editors from going rabid, Melida McKee, Melanie Gillum, Diana Hassel, Dorothy Nugent, Mary Canadas, Cheri Morrow, Lisa Hewitt, and Leslie Frazier.

After a respectable sales drive, the staff went to work and—THE FIRST DEADLINE WAS (more or less) MET! And so were the other deadlines: The Hi-Jacket people began to truly believe in miracles.

some copy. Pica typed sheets her specialty, Mary Canadas waits for an assignment. A trio of yearbook workers, Suzi Von Oettingen, John Donlon, and Melanie Gillum lounge against a wall. In front of the camera instead of behind it, Mark Wolfe has a taste of his own medicine. Bottom row: Looking over some unpaid bills, Ms. Blair can smile despite the problems. While Diana Hassel tries to make an ordinary event sound exciting, Lisa Hewitt checks for punctuation errors. Looking for the right photo are sisters Liz and Dorothy Nugent. Caught in the picture is Jean Martin, another H-J photographer. Battling it out on top of old Muddy (the battered vehicle), Cathy Roseberry cringes in anticipation of athletic Julie Mogenis' RC bottle swing. Not pictured but still remembered—Cindy Kappler, Cheri Morrow, Leslie Frazier, and Melida McKee.

If you think Manassas has problems, try visiting the World. Across the globe humans are battling their governments, economies, pollution, their societies, and themselves.

No matter which issue is analyzed, there is always one predominant disrupting factor—petro dollars (or the lack of them).

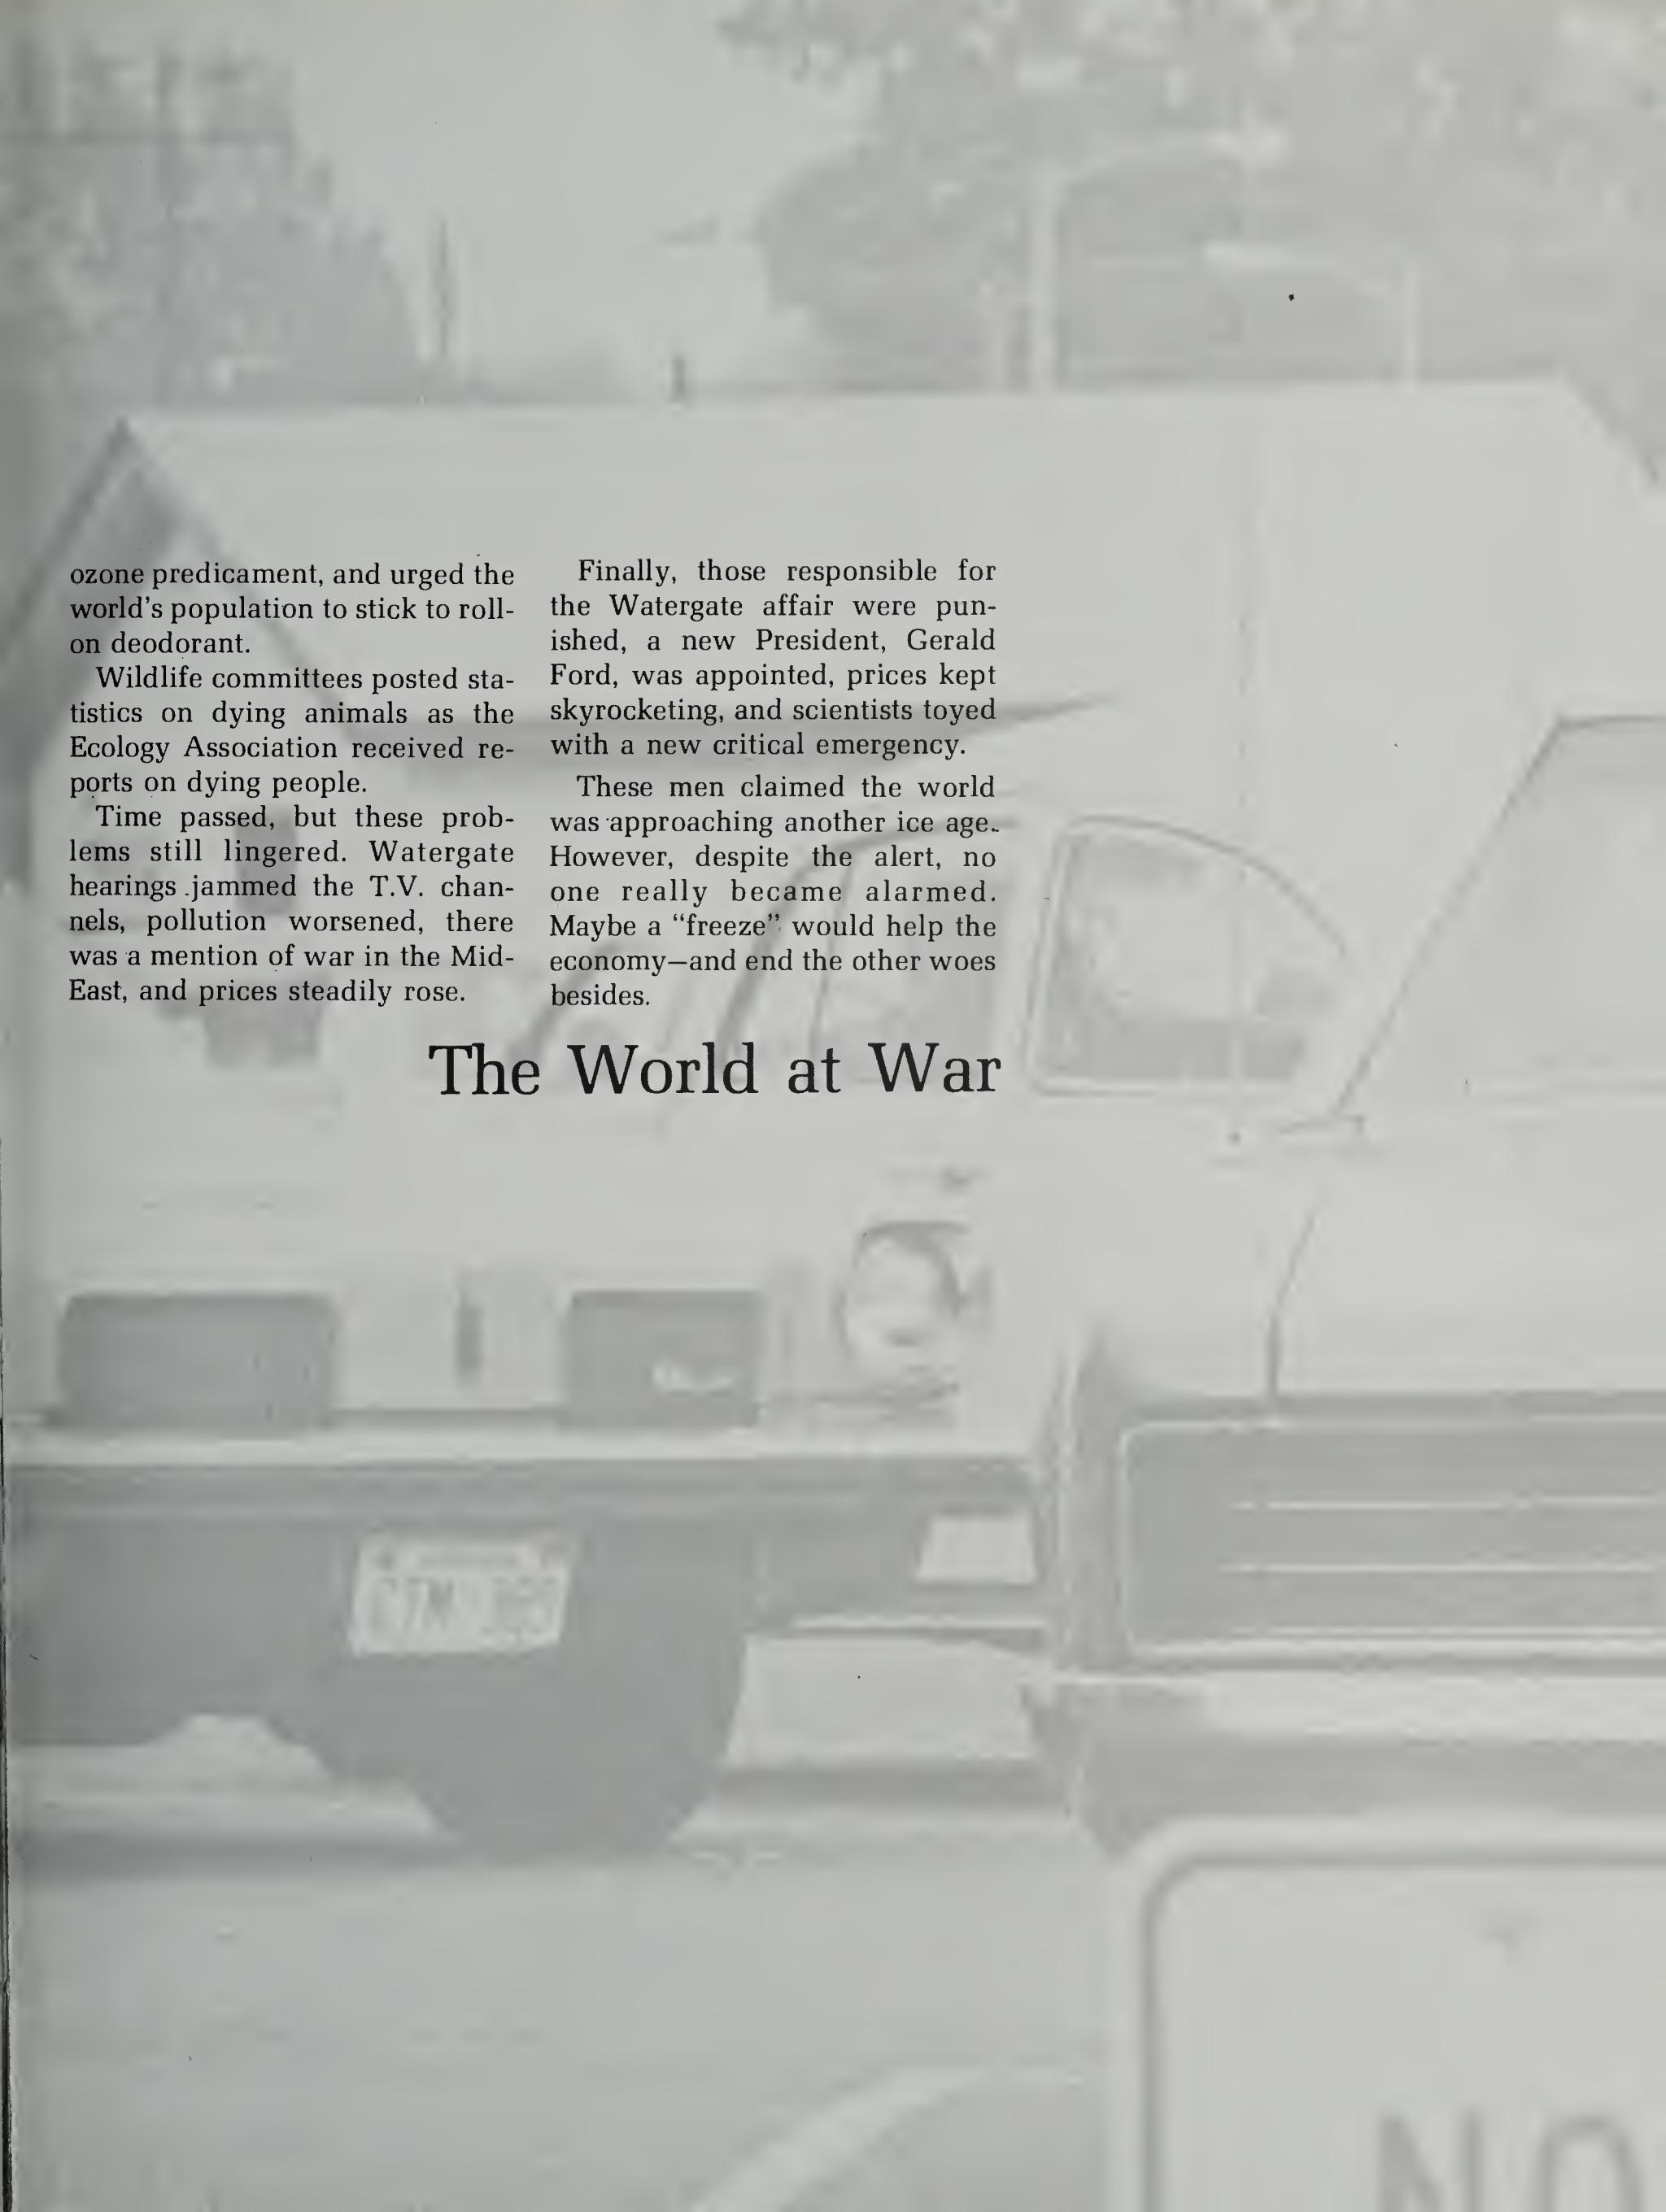

Inflation has effected everyone and every price. Most families even went through the "Mother Hubbard" routine. Housewives could not provide food for their husbands or their offspring if their cupboards and purses were bare.

The price of oil struck an all time high ever since Kissinger negotiated with the Arabs to bless us with their friendship. Small time gas stations began a new mania—bankruptcy, while the driving consumers complained of big company monopolies.

President Nixon also had financial problems floating through Capital Hill. Somehow he obtained more money than he could legally utilize for his campaign. Thus the public was faced with more unwanted problems—Watergate.

In addition to these universal disruptions, scientists were probing and discovering new problems. These intellectuals began to make the public aware of the ozone predicament, and urged the world's population to stick to roll-on deodorant.

Wildlife committees posted statistics on dying animals as the Ecology Association received reports on dying people.

Time passed, but these problems still lingered. Watergate hearings jammed the T.V. channels, pollution worsened, there was a mention of war in the Mid-East, and prices steadily rose.

Finally, those responsible for the Watergate affair were punished, a new President, Gerald Ford, was appointed, prices kept skyrocketing, and scientists toyed with a new critical emergency.

These men claimed the world was approaching another ice age. However, despite the alert, no one really became alarmed. Maybe a "freeze" would help the economy—and end the other woes besides.

The World at War

"I wish we didn't have to be at school by seven—I always oversleep."

"It's a real drag to go to school at noon—there's no time to do anything after I get out."

"My English class has nearly forty people in it!"

"I'd really like to take Concert Choir, but it isn't offered second shift."

"There's no time to hold club meetings anymore. When's all this going to end?"

By 1974 the question of how to educate 1,700 students in a school originally built for many less had become a nightmarish problem with no solution agreeable to everyone. It seemed that the complaints that arose from the students, parents, or faculty stemmed from the only answer given in response to Osbourn's plight—split shifts.

The class of '75 had been the first group with the dubious honor of having completely gone through four years of split shifts at Osbourn, and few enjoyed it. The freshman, sophomore, and junior years had been bad enough, going to school on overlap shifts, either from 7:30 A.M.

through 1:30 P.M. or 10:15 A.M. through 5:15 P.M., while "normal" high schools worked on a 9:00 A.M. through 3:30 P.M. day. Matters were not helped when a new school building originally designated for Osbourn was awarded to Stonewall Jackson, who shared the same overcrowding. With the 1974-75 year came the final blow—separate shifts were enacted to relieve the burden.

Separate shifts were not the answer Osbourn needed. For a first shift student or faculty member to get eight hours of rest and still wake at six he would have to be asleep by 10 P.M. Needless to say, few people at Osbourn at 7 A.M. were bright-eyed and raring to go.

to work. Tardy slips marked "overslept—unexcused" fluttered on to first and second period teachers' desks daily. First shift students did have a blessing though, with an entire afternoon to work, study, or goof off. That only infuriated second shift students who spent the afternoon pent up in school. Then again, second shift students could watch television at night until the test pattern came on.

Loyalties were challenged by the shifts. No one was merely an Osbournite, but an "Osbournite, first shift," or an "Osbournite, second shift." Second shift students screamed when first shift began two hours late after a snowfall and second shift had to go at their regular time, but first shift students screamed louder when second shift was canceled altogether due to a snowstrom and first shift had gone their full time. Friends who had been in the same classes since first grade suddenly never saw each other in school. Extra-curricular activities became such a hassel that many clubs and planned events were given up—no matter when they were scheduled it was inconvenient for someone.

These were not the most serious problems caused by Osbourn's overcrowding. Education suffered, so the students were hurt more than they realized.

Class time was cut to the bare minimum allowed by the state. Every second of class time was valuable, and many of those seconds were wasted. While Stonewall embroiled the community with their controversial textbooks, Osbourn teachers had to beg, borrow, and almost steal enough books for their classes. Many students could not take the classes they wanted, either from the class being overcrowded already, or the class being on the other shift.

These problems had only one solution—and that solution sat nearly completed, but tied down by the legal bonds of lawsuits.
